

A guide to Old Beirut Gemmayze & Sursock Walk

A nostalgic journey through Aristocratic Beirut, Architecture, and Memory.

1. Sursock Museum

Sursock Museum exterior, Historic Villa

Originally a 1912 private villa of Nicolas Sursock, later transformed into a museum in 1961. A symbol of Beirut's cultural identity blending Ottoman and Venetian styles.

"This wasn't just a museum... it was where Beirut's elite lived, hosted kings, and shaped the city's culture."

Inside a Historic Mansions of Sursock Street

1. Sursock Street & Aristocratic Houses

Built by Beirut's elite families, this street represents the 19th-century expansion of upper-class Beirut.

"This street was the Paris of Beirut but owned by Lebanese families."

1. Saint Nicolas Stairs

Saint Nicolas stairs connecting Gemmayze and Achrafieh

A symbolic connection between modern Beirut and its historic roots.

“Below you is modern Beirut. Above you is the memory of Beirut.”

1. Gemmayze Heritage Buildings

Ottoman and French mandate architecture, over 100 years old, deeply affected by the 2020 explosion.

Heritage Buildings in Gemmayze

Inside Heritage Buildings

Traditional Lebanese houses with triple arches

In Gemmayze

These Buildings represent both loss and...

resilience xx

A street scene from the Gemmayze neighborhood in Beirut, Lebanon.

The Entrance to the Sursock Palace area in Gemmayze

5. Cultural Stops

Villa Audi Museum

Discover hidden museums, churches, and art spaces that turn the area into a living museum.

Churches

Saint Antoine Greek Catholic Church

Nostalgic Journey

A nostalgic journey through Aristocratic Beirut

1. Nostalgic Lifestyle Stops

Old Cafes and Balconies in Gemmayze

Enjoy cafés, antique shops, and quiet balconies that preserve Beirut's charm.